- An independent study allows you to pursue a subject and approach that calls for a focused study with a faculty mentor, either individually or in a very small group of no more than three students and one or two faculty advisors. An independent study can take different forms (readings, field study, creative projects); the student/s develop it in consultation with the faculty advisor; and depending upon the work can be taken for 1-3 credits and may be extended to two semesters.
- The student must discuss their proposal for the independent study prior to the semester in which they plan to take it. Please fill out UHON 399 form and submit to honors@siu.edu to be approved by the Honors Director in advance of registering for the course. Registration for an independent study must be done by the Friday of the first week of classes.
- Student must earn a grade of C or above to count this towards their Honors credits.
